An exposition of the epistle to the Hebrew with the preliminary exercitations (Volume 2) John Owen This historic book may have numerous typos, missing text or index. Purchasers can download a free scanned copy of the original book (without typos) from the publisher. 1812. Not illustrated. Excerpt: ... what havoc he would make of the lives, and liberties, and estates, of the saints, did not these watchers from the Holy One disappoint him. He sees the church, and every member of it, which he seeks to devour, encamped about, protected, and defended, by this heavenly host; nay, he sees he cannot touch the soul of any one of them, nor cause an hair of his head to perish. This fills him with self-devouring envy and wrath. §15. (II.) The second question is, To what ends and purposes doth God make use of the ministry of angels in behalf of believers? In general, God doth it to communicate by them the effects of his care and love to the church. This God represented to Jacob in the vision he gave him of the ladder, which stood upon the earth, and whose top reached unto heaven. Gen. xxviii, 12. 15. For although the Jews say somewhat to the purpose, when they affirm this ladder to have denoted the dependence of all things here below on them above, under the rule of Divine Providence, yet they saw not all that was signified thereby. Our Savior tells us, John i, 51, that from thence his disciples should "see heaven opened, and angels ascending and descending upon the Son of man;" plainly alluding to this vision of Jacob. They ascend and descend on his mediation, sent by his authority, aiming at his glory, doing his work, and carrying on his interests. Particularly, §16. 1. They are sent in an extraordinary manner, to make revelations of the will of God about things tending to the obedience and spiritual advantage of believers. Hereof we have many instances in the Old Testament, especially in God's dealing with the patriarchs before the giving of the law; which also was confirmed under the New Testament, in many instan ces, see especially Rev. i, 1. How far God is...
