We all have too many things to do these days. That's why fast food restaurants and other food delivery businesses are booming…they capitalize on many people's lack of time. At least they perceive it to be that way.

I'm one of those people. In fact, when I get home, the last thing I want to do is prepare delicious but elaborate meals that can take up too much of my time. Time that I'd rather spend catching up on either my reading, favorite TV sitcoms, video games or sleeping. It used to be that I prayed for a way magic pot to throw the food ingredients in and come back for them when cooked. Well, no such luck. However, I learned that you can use the crockpot (a.k.a. slow cooker) and the oven to simply assemble the ingredients and simply leave them to cook. And it has opened a whole new world of deliciously easy to prepare meals even as I catch up on my most favorite things to do at home.
